

Dream On

Autumn on the Bosque

A little slice of Napa Valley? No, it's Bosque Encantado in Bernalillo, where Diego M. Ruiz, of Diego Handcrafted Homes, together with his client, built a working vineyard, as well as a 4,500-square-foot Spanish Colonial home. The clock and bell tower is used to store farming and winemaking equipment, and the homeowners can relax on a patio that overlooks the neatly planted vines. "It's authentic, timely architecture," says Ruiz. "We were given the opportunity to create focal points—it's very picturesque."
